Biography

As the scrutiny on financial institutions increases, Allison Schoenthal is on the front lines successfully defending clients against suits by consumers and government entities.

Head of our Consumer Finance Litigation Practice, Allison has over a decade of experience representing banks, trusts, lenders, government-sponsored enterprises, private equity companies, and loan servicers. Allison's understanding of the financial services industry and her wealth of experience — handling over 1,000 contract and consumer finance matters — has resulted in a favorable track record for clients in the lending industry.

Allison and her team have obtained important rulings for financial institutions, including setting legal precedent by shielding lenders from claims of negligence, determining the standard for standing in foreclosure actions, and establishing case law upholding the Mortgage Electronic Registration System.

Defending against claims under the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA), Truth in Lending Act (TILA), Fair Debt Collection Practices Act (FDCPA), Telephone Consumer Protection Act (TCPA), Home Owners Equity Protection Act (HOEPA), False Claims Act (FCA), Deceptive Practices Act (DPA), and other
