Rami Jawhar

Rami is a Program Manager on the Google Arts & Culture team, managing all partnerships across Africa and the Middle East. He is passionate about technology, culture and mindfulness and constantly tries to connect the dots between the tree pillars. Prior to Google, Rami held various positions at Facebook and the United Nations.

Rami also enjoys facilitating yoga & mindfulness classes at Google.

In his spare time, he enjoys creating music and immersing himself in outdoor activities like mountain biking, hiking and surfing. He holds a BE in electrical engineering from the American University of Beirut (2010) and a MEng in Operations Research and Information Engineering from Cornell University (2011).