

Tunde Akerele

Tunde is an experienced banker and finance professional who has gained experience with several bluechip financial institutions, including Citibank and Standard Bank, in different geographies.

During the course of his banking career Tunde gained extensive experience in investment banking, corporate banking, asset-based finance and risk management. Tunde graduated from the London School of Economics with an LLB (Hons.) and has an MBA from Columbia Business School.

Tunde currently works in the infrastructure space with a primary focus on developing Independent Power Projects across Africa. Tunde has worked in Nigeria on the development of a gas to power platform and is a founder of Tatanga Energy, a Southern African focused developer of renewable energy projects.

Tunde is Board Chairman of a Zimbabwean Telecommunications company called Dandemutande and also sits on the Board ZB Financial Holdings, a diversified Zimbabwean Financial Institution.