

Martin Michaelson

Senior Counsel
Washington, D.C.
New York

Biography

Nationally recognized in the higher education bar, Martin Michaelson represents national higher education organizations and more than one hundred leading U.S. and overseas universities in regulatory, litigation, and transactional matters. Martin returned to the firm in 1989 after six years as an in-house lawyer at Harvard.

A fellow of the National Association of College and University Attorneys, Martin has written and spoken extensively on governance of university boards, faculty, administrators, and students. He is a consulting editor of Trusteeship, the Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges magazine, and taught the course Higher Education and the Law at Harvard. Martin's views have been published in the Chronicle of Higher Education, the Journal of College and University Law, and elsewhere. He is a member of the District of Columbia, New York, and Massachusetts bars, and the bars of the U.S. Supreme Court and numerous federal courts.
