

Laura Martinez

Associate

Denver

Biography

Laura Martinez brings to life innovative, practical solutions. Covering a broad spectrum of corporate transactions, Laura partners with clients to secure favorable outcomes. Combining technical excellence alongside her collaborative, hands-on approach, Laura dynamically aligns with clients' strategic business goals.

Complimentary to her practice, Laura also has a strong passion for education. She is committed to devoting her time to supporting the community and our education systems. She previously worked as a high school teacher and has spent time working for both Georgetown University and the Department of Defense Educational Activity in roles where she gained hands-on experience working with and investing in our schools.

Prior to joining Hogan Lovells, Laura served as a judicial intern for the Honorable William Hood III, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Colorado. While attending law school, she also had the experience of being a student attorney for the University of Denver's Civil Litigation Clinic and was the Production Editor for the Denver Law Review.
