

Marc A. Marinaccio

Counsel

Baltimore

Biography

Marc Marinaccio focuses on complex civil litigation, commercial litigation and products liability, with particular emphasis on the life sciences industry. Marc handles all phases of high-stakes litigation, from formulating initial litigation strategy, to managing discovery and drafting motions, to trial preparation and post-trial appellate proceedings.

Marc also represents clients in arbitration and mediation, and is frequently called upon to help clients understand and manage their risks before litigation arises.

Marc has a deep understanding of the life sciences industry, including the regulatory systems that impact all phases of a client's development and operation, supply chain structures and common business relationships in the industry, and complicated pricing, marketing and reimbursement issues relating to government health care programs.

He has worked with a wide range of life sciences industry clients – from emerging biotech companies in the early stages of clinical development to some of the largest pharmaceutical and medical device manufacturers in the world. Marc's life sciences experience gives him a broader understanding of his clients' business goals and allows him to tailor his approach to achieve the best results for his clients.

Marc also maintains a healthy pro bono practice, representing refugees seeking asylum in immigration
