

Lacy G. Brown

Senior Associate

Houston

Denver

Biography

As a senior associate in the Houston and Denver litigation groups at Hogan Lovells, Lacy Brown works primarily on government investigations, complex commercial litigation, and cross-border disputes, particularly in the energy and health care industries. She assists clients in all stages of litigation, including case assessment, factual investigation, electronic discovery, depositions, dispositive motions, mediation, and trial preparation.

Lacy is also active in the firm's pro bono program. She's worked with Kids in Need of Defense, helping juveniles in federal immigration proceedings; Freedom Now, representing prisoners of conscience; and the American Civil Liberties Union, pursuing criminal defense reform.

While in law school, Lacy served as an editor of the Baylor Law Review. She was also a semi-finalist in the Emory Civil Rights and Liberties Moot Court Competition.
