

Dr. Nadine Lederer, LL.M. (MIDS)

Senior Associate
Munich

Biography

Nadine Lederer specializes in International Arbitration, with a focus on disputes in the technology, media and telecommunications, and energy sectors. She represents and advises national and international clients in pre-arbitral scenarios, in disputes before arbitral tribunals, and in arbitration-related litigation proceedings before national courts, such as enforcement actions. Nadine also acts as arbitrator and tribunal secretary in international arbitration proceedings. Her arbitration experience includes disputes under the LCIA, ICC, UNCITRAL and DIS Arbitration Rules, seated in various jurisdictions.

Technology is influencing all areas of law, including arbitration. Nadine works with clients to help them understand their shifting risk landscape, as technology disrupts their industries, and helps them to ensure they are maximising the use of technology to mitigate those risks, eg. through the use of AI in arbitration and litigation.

Nadine studied law with a focus on private international law in Munich and Bayreuth, with additional studies in economics. She completed her doctoral thesis in the area of private international law and obtained an LL.M. degree in International Dispute Settlement (MIDS) from the Geneva University Law School and the Graduate Institute of International and
