

Our International Trade team comments on additional restrictions on trade with Cuba

28 January 2020

Client Alert

The Trump Administration announced a more restrictive policy towards Cuba in a presidential memo issued in June 2017. Since then, the Administration has implemented initiatives that have narrowed or revoked authorized trading activity with Cuba.

In this installment of the Trade Demystified video series, Deborah Wei discusses recent Administration actions as well as anticipated rule changes that will further restrict trade with Cuba.
