

Simon Keen

Counsel
London

Biography

Simon loves the tangible nature of property. As a counsel in the London real estate team, Simon works with investors, occupiers and developers of commercial real estate and their funders on their UK transactions. Simon regularly visits properties with which he has an ongoing involvement to ensure that he understands how they function and what the issues are for his clients and their businesses in the management and operation of their investments or business premises. Asset management is therefore a pleasure!

Having been seconded to the in-house legal teams at both Esso UK and the Royal Mail in his career, Simon understands what matters to occupiers of UK real estate. He also has particular experience in guiding them through the process of leasing and then managing their business premises. Property owners find this understanding of their tenants and customers invaluable when he is advising them on leasing transactions.

Simon has a particular interest in Sustainability and Energy Performance and has extensive knowledge of the real estate issues arising from these increasingly important topics. He advises clients and colleagues on EPCs, the CRC, ESOS and the 2015 Minimum Energy Efficiency Standards legislation and helps clients to
