

COVID-19 relief efforts heighten fair credit reporting risks

02 June 2020

Law360

The economic downturn caused by COVID-19, and related efforts to provide consumer relief, have cast a bright spotlight on credit reporting. Nearly all lenders and servicers have taken steps to revamp their credit reporting policies and practices — acting either voluntarily or in accordance with dictates issued through federal, state or local laws.

Read More: COVID-19 relief efforts heighten fair credit reporting risks

> Read the full article online