

Ray Li

Associate
Washington, D.C.

Biography

Ray Li draws on his wealth of experience in the education sector to provide clients with creative solutions in education law and policy.

Ray has spent substantial time working with government, nonprofit, and private sector education organizations. He gained valuable experience in education policy as an intern for the U.S. Department of Justice Civil Rights Division's Educational Opportunities Section; the U.S. Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions; the U.S. Chamber of Commerce; and a U.S. senator. Ray also interned for the Duke University Undergraduate Admissions Office, which allowed him to view education law from a university's perspective.

Ray studied public policy and education at Duke University, where he served as a student member of the Duke Board of Trustees and student government vice president. At Stanford, Ray completed a joint degree in law and education. While in law school, he served as managing editor of the Stanford Law and Policy Review, Stanford Law Association's academic affairs co-chair, and a graduation class marshal. He represented clients in special education matters and worked on education civil rights litigation as part of the Stanford Youth and Education Law Project.

Phone

+1 202 637 4858

Fax

+1 202 637 5910

Email

ray.li@hoganlovells.com

Practices

Education

Industries

Education

Education and admissions

Education

J.D., Stanford Law School, highest pro bono distinction, 2018

M.A., Stanford Graduate School of Education, 2018

Latest thinking and events

- Hogan Lovells Publications
 - U.S. Department of Education proposes regulations related to accreditation, state authorization, and other Title IV topics in "kitchen sink" rule-making Education Alert
- Hogan Lovells Publications
 - Spring round-up: State legislators seek to further regulate postsecondary education Education Alert
- Hogan Lovells Publications
 - Beyond FERPA: The California Consumer Privacy Act's new rules for privacy in the education sector Education Alert

B.A., Duke University, Phi Beta Kappa, magna cum laude, 2015

Bar admissions and qualifications

District of Columbia
