

Annika Lichtenbaum

Associate
Washington, D.C.

Biography

Annika Lichtenbaum advises clients on a broad range of international trade and investment matters, including economic sanctions, export controls, national security, and anti-money laundering. She uses a combination of legal analysis and policy advocacy to help clients achieve results in a complex regulatory landscape.

During law school, Annika served as a senior editor of the National Security Law Review and co-director of the Harvard Law School Chapter of the International Refugee Assistance Project (IRAP). She also gained valuable advocacy and direct client experience while interning with Human Rights First's Refugee Representation team.

Annika maintains an active pro bono practice, working mainly on asylum and domestic violence cases.

Representative experience

Assisted university with responding to subpoena from U.S. government regarding funds from sanctioned countries and restricted parties; reviewed and summarized policies and procedures related to same.

Latest thinking and events

■ News

Phone

+1 202 804 7786

Fax

+1 202 637 5910

Email

annika.lichtenbaum@hoganlovells.com

Languages

English
Spanish

Practices

International Trade and Investment

Industries

Aerospace and Defense
Financial Institutions

Education and admissions

- EO prohibits U.S. persons from engaging in certain transactions involving eight Chinese apps
- Analysis
 - U.S. Department of Commerce announces expansion of foreign direct product rule restricting Huawei's access to certain foreign-produced items International Trade Alert
- News
 - U.S. Department of Commerce imposes significant new export control restrictions on China, Russia, and Venezuela International Trade Alert

Education

J.D., Harvard Law School, 2019

B.A., Brown University, 2014

Bar admissions and qualifications

District of Columbia
