

Hogan Lovells

‘grabprinting.com’ decision: UDRP panels will want snapshot of circumstances at time when domain name was registered

14 November 2019

World Trademark Review

In Grabtaxi Holdings Pte Ltd v Lim (WIPO Case D2019-1585), a single-member panel has denied the transfer of a domain name under the Uniform Domain Name Dispute Resolution Policy (UDRP) because the complainant had failed to prove the respondent's lack of rights or legitimate interests. The panel found that the respondent appeared to have been operating a legitimate business for around three years and had provided a credible explanation for his choice of the domain name.

Click here to read the full article.

Contacts

Jane Seager

Partner

> Read the full article online