

UDRP proceedings: evidence of targeting is crucial

30 October 2019

World Trademark Review

In a recent decision under the Uniform Domain Name Dispute Resolution Policy (UDRP) before the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO), a panel has denied the transfer of a domain name because the complainant had failed to demonstrate that the respondent was targeting the complainant's trademark, even though the domain name was identical to it.

Click here to read the full article.

Contacts

David Taylor

Partner

Hortense Le
Dosseur

Associate

> Read the full article online