

The “Space Resources Institute Act” and the Future of Space Mining

16 April 2019

Global Policy Journal

In what only recently would have seemed like science fiction, Colorado has positioned itself to become a leader in the space resources sector. But what are the challenges and potential impacts of such a move?

Click here to read the full article

Authors:

Morgan D. Bazilian is Professor of Public Policy, and Director of the Payne Institute at the Colorado School of Mines. He was previously Lead Energy Specialist at the World Bank.

Julia La Manna is an associate in the Energy and Natural Resources practice group in the Denver office of Hogan Lovells US LLP.

Scot Anderson is a partner in the Denver office of Hogan Lovells, with a practice focused on advising the extractives industry. He is also the global head of the firm’s Energy and Natural Resources Industry Sector Group.

Alex Gilbert is cofounder of SparkLibrary, Inc. and a Non-Resident Fellow at the Payne Institute for Public Policy at the Colorado School of Mines.

Korey Christensen is a Senior Associate at Hogan Lovells. He represents clients in all segments of the energy and natural resources industries.

Contacts

Scot
Anderson

Partner

Julia La
Manna

Associate

> Read the full article online