

Incident and Crisis Response

We develop plans and procedures for investigating and responding to cybersecurity incidents, testing response capabilities, managing the response, providing technical and procedural recommendations, and supporting incident response and investigations.

Representative experience

After a major payment card breach, we reviewed and advised on the technical investigation, conducted our own review of the forensics report, and helped shape the report's favorable findings and recommendations.

When a breach hit more than 50 million records, we created a summary of the legal arguments and a description of the technical facts that was used by the client to prepare its defense and settlement strategy.
