

Katy Louise Bonesio

Senior Associate

Denver

Biography

Katy Bonesio works in the trenches with clients to help them resolve problems from the ground up. Her practice focuses on commercial and, employment litigation and white collar investigations, across a range of industries. She is also on-hand to advise and counsel on employment issues that arise in corporate transactional matters. Leveraging her background as a mediator, Katy's cease-fire approach to alternative dispute resolution brings opposing parties to the table and helps clients resolve complex lawsuits in a timely, cost-efficient manner.

A Colorado native, Katy has been active in the Denver legal community since she started law school. She served as president of the University of Denver's chapter of the National Women Law Students' Organization and worked as a mediator through the Student Law Office. She found her interest in employment law early and focused her studies there and on alternative dispute resolution and, obtained a certificate in Workplace Law.
