Biography

As co-head of the firm's global Fund Formation Practice Group, David Winter represents sponsors and investors across the fund formation spectrum. David was nearly eight years into his career as a tax lawyer when the firm asked him to take an expanded role in fund formation. He readily accepted and has never looked back.

David's clients include multi-billion dollar private equity firms, first-time fund managers, university endowments, pension plans, banks, and SBICs, many of whom he has represented for more than 10 years.

His experience advising both sponsors and investors arms him with the perspectives needed to craft creative and effective solutions. He particularly enjoys the civility and mutual respect that define the fund formation bar.

David's sponsor practice is broad. He represents the sponsors of private equity, venture capital, energy, real estate, and debt funds. His clients include sponsors of sector-focused funds and opportunistic funds,
