

Warren Alexander Kessler

Senior Associate
Washington, D.C.

Biography

Warren Kessler is an experienced telecom, technology, and media lawyer based in Washington, D.C.

Warren advises clients on a wide range of matters before the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), and has worked on numerous high-profile transactions, rulemakings, spectrum auctions, and FCC enforcement proceedings. In these matters, Warren assists wireless carriers, satellite operators, strategic investors, trade associations, cable networks, and broadcasters, as well as entrepreneurs and disruptors that may not fit squarely into one particular field or industry.

Before joining Hogan Lovells, Warren was an associate in another Washington, D.C. firm's communications practice. Prior to practicing law, Warren interned for the FCC's Enforcement Bureau (Investigations and Hearings Division) and the Department of Justice's Antitrust Division (Telecommunications and Broadband Section). While in law school, Warren served as Editor-in-Chief of the Federal Communications Law Journal and was a Writing Fellow for the school's legal research and writing program.

Representative experience

Support clients' corporate mergers and acquisitions and secures FCC approval for these transactions.

Support clients in FCC compliance, licensing, investigations, and audits.

Phone

+1 202 637 3632

Fax

+1 202 637 5910

Email

warren.kessler@hoganlovells.com

Languages

English

Practices

Administrative and Public Law
Communications, Internet, and Media
Mergers and Acquisitions
Space and Satellite

Industries

Technology and Telecoms

Areas of focus

Broadband, Internet, and E-commerce

Assist clients participating in FCC and rulemaking and spectrum auction proceedings.

Corporate and Commercial
Transactions

Electronics and Consumer
Appliances

Media

Spectrum

Telecommunications and Wireline

Education and admissions

Education

J.D., The George Washington
University Law School, with honors,
2017

BA in International Relations, The
George Washington University,
Elliott School of International Affairs,
magna cum laude, 2009

Memberships

Federal Communications Bar Association

Bar admissions and qualifications

District of Columbia

Virginia
