

Christopher W. Weigand

Senior Associate

Denver

Biography

As a senior associate in the Denver office, Chris Weigand focuses his practice on a full range of business and corporate law matters. He represents multi-billion dollar companies, private, closely held companies, and emerging growth companies as they operate in a dynamic business environment.

Chris routinely works side-by-side with his clients' management teams to execute complex business transactions, including mergers and acquisitions, joint ventures and public and private offerings. He assists public company clients with their ongoing reporting and compliance obligations under federal securities laws and stock exchange rules. He serves clients in the sports and entertainment, health care, food and beverage, and hospitality industries.

Chris leverages his diverse background to help his clients capitalize on a full spectrum of strategic opportunities.

While in law school at the University of Colorado, Chris served as a member of the University of Colorado Law Review and as the president of the Business Law Association.
