Congress' year-end funding bill included extensions of tax credits for renewable energy, including wind, biofuels, and others

07 January 2020

Client Alert

In a rare display of bipartisanship, both houses of Congress and President Trump were able to come to agreement in the waning hours of the 2019 congressional session to extend government funding for fiscal year 2020. Included in this package were some significant gifts to the renewable energy industry, in the form of tax credit extensions.
