

20 July 2016

Hogan Lovells has been a thought leader on the impact of FinTech since well before the referendum and has developed our Brexit Hub to keep our clients updated. In association with our strategic partners Innovate Finance, we have also been considering the impact of Brexit on the UK FinTech market.

Our Sector Head Rachel Kent has already participated in the Innovate Finance Townhall following the EU Referendum result on Thursday 7 July and a video of this session can be viewed here.

To coincide with London FinTech Week, we also published the article After the referendum FinTech looks forward, looking at the future for FinTech in the UK.

Brexit will take time to be negotiated and the impact on each FinTech business is different. We have created a checklist for you to use when considering how you develop a contingency plan. You can access this here.

You can also send your questions to FISBrexit@hoganlovells.com

We will be producing further content and tools as the UK's Brexit policy is developed, so please continue to check back on this page. Find out more about us and our global FinTech experience in our global capabilities brochure.

Please click here to download our brochure.

Contacts

Rachel Kent

Partner

> Read the full article online