Biography

Dan Shulak immerses himself in the industries of his clients to develop creative solutions for challenging antitrust, litigation, and other government investigation-related problems. Most recently, his practice has been focused on helping companies navigate global and domestic cartel investigations and their aftermath.

Dan resolves complex legal controversies with practical strategies tailored to each client's individualized needs – quickly, efficiently, and with minimal disruption to its daily business operations.

Dan conducts internal investigations and represents companies under investigation by the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ) and other government agencies. He frequently serves on teams responsible for concurrent cartel investigations in numerous jurisdictions around the world. Dan has been involved in many of the most significant cartel investigations of the last several years.

As an experienced antitrust litigator, Dan represents companies in complex class-action and other litigation that often results from government investigations into alleged price-fixing, bid-rigging, and market allocation conspiracies. In addition, Dan assists companies in other types of high-stakes competition-related litigation, including allegations of illegal
