Biography

Byron Phillips is a disputes lawyer and problem solver based in our Hong Kong office with over a decade of experience quelling crises for clients. This includes conducting complex litigation, arbitration, and investigations (both internal investigations and in response to formal investigations brought by regulators) usually of a cross-border nature.

Byron has particular interest and experience in cybersecurity and data privacy, technology-related litigation and arbitration, financial services litigation and investigations, white collar crime and fraud, insolvency litigation, and professional liability disputes.

Technology is influencing all areas of law, including litigation, arbitration and investigations. Byron works with clients to help them understand their shifting risk landscape, as technology disrupts their industries, and helps them to ensure they are maximizing the use of technology to mitigate those risks.

Byron is also a member of the Hogan Lovells Crisis Leadership Team, the firm's multi-disciplinary, global crisis management practice.
