Biography

Bill Nunn advises his corporate clients on all aspects of transactional matters to help them reach their business goals. Exceptional client service is at the core to Bill's practice, as its impact and importance was instilled in him while working at a top New York restaurant before law school. This experience also helps him anticipate clients' needs and thrive in the fast-paced whirlwind of closing a complex deal.

While in law school, Bill gained valuable and varied experience working as a summer associate at Hogan Lovells, a law clerk at a criminal defense firm, and a legal intern at a technology education organization. He also served as an articles editor for the University of Colorado Law Review and a Rothgerber Teaching Fellow in legislation and regulation.
