Senior Associate

Rome

Biography

Whether clients need assistance on the typical matters of administrative and public law concern, either in courts or outside the courts, or are looking for legal support to explore new rising commercial and regulated industries, Emanuela is very responsive and always available to satisfy client needs and requests in a very efficient and timely manner.

As a member of our Administrative and Public Law practice since 2008, Emanuela has developed her experience advising international clients in a wide range of areas, including environmental law, public procurement law, renewables and conventional energy, expropriation procedures, oil and gas regulatory, life sciences and other regulatory compliance matters. In the field of Italian public procurement law she regularly assists international clients in their participation in public procurement procedures launched by Italian contracting authorities as well as in the post-award phase, and she has also experience with public-private partnerships for the development of important projects and infrastructures, including in the healthcare sector.

Following admission to the Bar in 2010, Emanuela has assisted many of our clients in important judicial proceedings before Italian administrative and civil courts. In the context of some of the largest and most
