

Stephen A. Loney, Jr.

Partner

Philadelphia

Biography

Stephen Loney litigates complex and high-value commercial matters. He represents global companies in a variety of litigation contexts, concentrating in litigation before federal and state courts in Pennsylvania and New Jersey. He has vast knowledge across civil, criminal, and investigation contexts. Stephen serves clients in a manner that accounts for their broader interests and potential risks beyond immediate litigation needs.

Stephen regularly helps clients in the life sciences and health care industries who are facing civil actions or government investigations. He also represents insurers, telecommunications companies, and manufacturers of building and industrial products in all phases of complex litigation. Stephen has broad background in director and officer insurance coverage matters, multimillion dollar commercial contract disputes, and nationwide consumer class actions.

Stephen is also the Pro Bono Liaison partner for the Philadelphia office. He has been recognized for his work with the Philadelphia Homeless Advocacy Project. He was also co-counsel for a group of Pennsylvania citizens in a historic challenge to the state's legislative election district plan. Stephen co-wrote the first successful challenge to a Pennsylvania legislative redistricting plan in recent history and argued before
