

Matthew R. Bowles

Senior Associate
Washington, D.C.

Biography

As a senior associate, Matt Bowles advises U.S. and multinational companies on strategic business transactions and matters of corporate governance and compliance.

Matt has helped clients effectively execute public company mergers, private acquisitions and dispositions, carve-outs, spin-offs, joint ventures, investments, technology licenses, and complex commercial transactions, often in situations involving unique, interdisciplinary, and cross-border issues. He takes a keen interest in understanding each client's business, providing tailored advice and delivering practical solutions to advance the client's objectives. In addition to negotiating deals, Matt regularly counsels companies and their boards on corporate governance, SEC disclosure, listing requirements, and related compliance matters. He has represented public and private companies in a variety of sectors, including technology, industrials, real estate, energy, and health care.

Matt also engages in pro bono legal clinics in Washington, D.C. and has volunteered with Compass consulting teams to advise nonprofits on strategic alignment projects.
