Baltimore

Biography

Laura Heller advises clients on a broad range of corporate and securities matters, including securities reporting, equity and debt financings, corporate governance, mergers and acquisitions, and licensing and collaborations.

Laura graduated magna cum laude from the University of Maryland Francis King Carey School of Law, where she received the Law School Alumni Association Award given to the one graduate deemed to have contributed most largely to the school through his or her qualities of character and leadership. While in law school, Laura served as Editor-in-Chief of the Maryland Law Review, and was a member of both the Moot Court Board and the National Trial Team.

Laura excels in conveying her message, as evidenced by her publications. Laura's Note achieved the highest score in Maryland Law's petitioning competition, and was published by the Maryland Law Review. Her piece on restorative justice won a writing competition hosted by Missouri Law Review, and was also published in the journal. Laura has further honed her communication and collaborative skills while serving as a mediator in the Baltimore City District Court as a part of Maryland Law's Mediation Clinic.

Prior to law school, Laura began her career as a legal
