

Seth Olson

Associate

Washington, D.C.

Biography

Seth Olson helps clients maneuver the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's (FDA) complex medical device and technology regulations.

As a former regulatory counsel at the Center for Devices and Radiological Health (CDRH) at FDA, Seth brings his regulatory experience to bear as he advises companies on both medical device premarket review and postmarket compliance issues.

Prior to joining Hogan Lovells, Seth also worked at an international law firm in Washington, D.C., where he concentrated on FDA regulatory matters. In addition to Seth's law degree from The George Washington University Law School, he holds a Masters of Business Administration from the University of New Hampshire and also studied biology at Brigham Young University.

Representative experience

Advised investigational immunotherapy company regarding FDA's Investigation Device Exemption requirements and applicable medical device premarket pathways.*

Advised multiple medical device companies on responding to FDA enforcement letters and facility inspection observations.*

Performed FDA regulatory review on multiple medical

Phone

+1 202 637 5476

Fax

+1 202 637 5910

Email

seth.olson@hoganlovells.com

Practices

Administrative and Public Law

Marketing and Advertising

Medical Device and Technology
Regulatory

Pharmaceuticals and Biotechnology
Regulatory

Industries

Life Sciences and Health Care

Areas of focus

Cell, Tissue, and Gene Therapies device and technology corporate mergers and transactions.*

*Matter handled prior to joining Hogan Lovells.

Awards and rankings

- Food and Drugs (Washington, D.C.), Rising Star, Super Lawyers, 2020

Latest thinking and events

- News
 - FDA revises EUA guidance for mask & respirator decontamination and bioburden reduction systems
- News
 - FDA takes significant action to reduce mask and respirator shortage
- News
 - FDA temporarily postpones all domestic routine facility inspections in response to COVID-19 pandemic
- News
 - FDA postpones foreign inspections amid growing concerns over coronavirus (COVID-19)

Education and admissions

Education

J.D., The George Washington University Law School, 2016

M.B.A., University of New Hampshire, high honors, 2014

B.S. Biology, Brigham Young University, 2010

Bar admissions and qualifications

District of Columbia
