

Jim Conlin

Associate
Northern Virginia

Biography

Jim Conlin knows that a lawsuit is generally not the best way to grow your business. That is why his practice focuses not just on litigation, including multi-million dollar commercial disputes and cutting-edge employment lawsuits, but also proactively advising clients about the legal ramifications of their business decisions.

Jim first joined Hogan Lovells as a summer associate in 2016. He graduated from William & Mary Law School magna cum laude in 2017 after serving as a staff member on the William & Mary Law Review for two years and as an Associate Chair of the Law School Honor Council for his entire law school career.

Jim's pro bono experience is wide-ranging, from assisting a disabled veteran through the Veterans Administration benefits process to counseling a major nonprofit as it sought to navigate a thorny contract issue.
