

Time's almost up for residential letting fees

16 July 2018

Keeping It Real Estate

Seven months on from its publication in November 2017, the draft Bill to ban residential letting fees has undergone the Committee Stage of pre-legislative scrutiny without amendment and now heads back to Parliament for its Report Stage. As the Bill looks increasingly likely to become law, we take stock of the Bill's aims and review its anticipated impact.

Click here to read the full article.

Co-author: Jessica Tang, Trainee Solicitor

Contacts

Lauren
Addy

Senior
Associate

> Read the full article online