

Nos. 16-1436, 16-1540

In the Supreme Court of the United States

DONALD J. TRUMP, PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES, et al., Petitioners,

v.

INTERNATIONAL REFUGEE ASSISTANCE PROJECT, et al.,
Respondents.

DONALD J. TRUMP, PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES, et al.,
Petitioners,

v.

HAWAII, et al.,
Respondents.

On Writs of Certiorari to the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth and Ninth Circuits

AMICUS CURIAE BRIEF OF INTERNATIONAL LAW
SCHOLARS AND NONGOVERNMENTAL ORGANIZATIONS IN SUPPORT OF RESPONDENTS

Elisabeth C. Frost
Amanda R. Callais
PERKINS COIE LLP
700 13th Street, NW
Suite 600
Washington, D.C. 20005-3960

Aaron X. Fellmeth
Counsel of Record
Sandra Day O'Connor
College of Law
Mail Code 9520
Arizona State University
111 E. Taylor St.
Phoenix, AZ 85004-4467
480.727.8575
Aaron.Fellmeth@asu.edu

Counsel for Amici Curiae
International Law Scholars and Non-Governmental Organizations

Becker Gallagher • Cincinnati, OH • Washington, D.C. • 800.890.5001

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES ii

RULE 29 STATEMENT OF
INTEREST OF AMICI CURIAE 1

I. SUMMARY OF THE ARGUMENT 2

II. ARGUMENT 4

 A. International Law Is Relevant to Assessing the Legality of the Executive
 Order 4

 B. International Law Regarding
 Discrimination on the Basis of Religion and National Origin 9

 1. The International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights 9

 2. The International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination 14

 C. Relevant Provisions of the Executive
 Order 16

III. CONCLUSION 18

APPENDIX

Appendix A App. 1

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Federal Cases

F. Hoffmann-La Roche Ltd. v. Empagran S.A. , 542 U.S. 155 (2004)	6
Filartiga v. Pena-Irala , 630 F.2d 876 (2d Cir. 1980)	7
Immigration & Naturalization Serv. v. Stevic , 467 U.S. 407 (1984)	6
Kerry v. Din , __ U.S. __, 135 S. Ct. 2128 (2015) (Kennedy, J., concurring)	12
Landon v. Plasencia , 459 U.S. 21 (1982)	12
Murray v. The Charming Betsy , 6 U.S. (2 Cranch) 64 (1804)	6
Sale v. Haitian Ctrs. Council , 509 U.S. 155 (1994)	6
The Paquete Habana , 175 U.S. 677 (1900)	7
Talbot v. Seeman , 5 U.S. (1 Cranch) 1 (1801)	6
United States v. The Schooner Peggy , 5 U.S. (1 Cranch) 103 (1801)	8

Other Cases

TBB-Turkish Union in Berlin/Brandenburg v. Germany	15
---	----

Constitutional Provisions

U.S. Const. Article II, § 3	7
U.S. Const. Article VI	7
U.S. Const. Article VI, cl. 2	14

Legislative Materials

138 Cong. Rec. S4781-01 (daily ed., Apr. 2, 1992)	4, 9
140 Cong. Rec. S7634-02 (daily ed., June 24, 1994)	14, 15

Treaties

Convention Against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (“CAT”), June 26, 1987, 1465 U.N.T.S. 113	5
International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (“CERD”), Dec. 21, 1965, G.A. Res. 2106 (XX), Annex, 660 U.N.T.S. 195	passim
International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights art. 2(2), Dec. 19, 1966, 999 U.N.T.S. 171 (1976) (“CCPR”)	passim

International Declarations

Hurst Hannum, The Status of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights in National and International Law , 25 Ga. J. Int’l & Comp. L. 287 (1995/96)	13
--	----

Universal Declaration of Human Rights, arts. 2, 7, 12, G.A. Res. 217A(III), U.N. Doc. A/810 (1948)	13
--	----

Other International Materials

Comm. on the Elimination of Racial Discrim., Commun. No. 48/2010 (Feb. 26, 2013), U.N. Doc. CERD/C/82/D/48/2010	16
Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, General Recommendation No. 30, para. 4, 64th Sess., U.N. Doc. CERD/C/64/Misc.11/rev.3 (2004)	10
Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, General Recommendation No. 35: Combating Racist Hate Speech, para. 6, U.N. Doc. CERD/C/OC/35 (2013)	15
Human Rights Committee, General Comment No. 15, para. 5 (1986), U.N. Doc. HRI/GEN/1/Rev.1 (1994)	11
Human Rights Committee, General Comment No. 18, paras. 6 and 12, U.N. Doc. HRI/GEN/1Rev.1 (1994)	10, 12
Human Rights Committee, General Comment No. 19, para. 5 (1990), U.N. Doc. HRI/GEN/1/Rev.1 (1994)	11
State Reports—Convention Against Torture— U.S.A., U.N. Doc. CAT/C/28/Add.5, para. 57-60 (Feb. 9, 2000)	5, 6

Other Authorities

- Aaron Xavier Fellmeth, Paradigms of International Human Rights Law 119-21 (2016) 10
- Alexander Hamilton, Pacificus No. 1 (June 29, 1793), reprinted in 15 The Papers of Alexander Hamilton 33 (Harold C. Syrett ed. 1969) 8
- Central Intelligence Agency, World Factbook, <https://www.cia.gov/library/publications/the-world-factbook/geos/xx.html> 17
- Hearing Before the Comm. on Foreign Relations, U.S. Senate, 101st Cong. (1990) 5
- O.A.S. Res. XXX (1948), Basic Documents Pertaining to Human Rights in the Inter-American System, OEA/Ser.L/V/I.4 rev. 13 (2010) 13
- Restatement (Third) of the Foreign Relations Law of the United States § 111(3) 7
- Restatement (Third) of Foreign Relations Law § 111(3)-(4) (1987) 4
- Sen. Exec. Rpt. 101-30, Resolution of Advice and Consent to Ratification (1990) 4
- Senate Comm. on Foreign Relations, Report on International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, S. Exec. Rep. No. 103-29 (1994) 6

RULE 29 STATEMENT OF
INTEREST OF *AMICI CURIAE

The Amici are eighty-five international law scholars and several nongovernmental organizations. See Appendix A (listing all Amici). The international law scholars include practitioners and tenured faculty members at law schools in the United States who have devoted extensive efforts to the study and practice of international law. They research, teach, speak, and publish widely on international law issues, and they routinely advise and practice in matters addressing such issues before American courts. They include members of the International Human Rights Committee of the International Law Association, American Branch,¹ as well as university professors and practicing lawyers with expertise in these subjects. The nongovernmental organizations are experts in civil rights law, immigration law, and international human rights law.

Amici submit this brief to vindicate the public interest in ensuring a proper understanding and application of the international human rights law relevant to this case. As scholars and practitioners in the area, the Amici have a strong interest in ensuring that the Court reaches a decision that conforms to the existing body of international law binding on the United States. The Amici support the Respondents in this matter and urge affirmance of the decision below.

¹ Petitioners have filed blanket letters of consent to the filing of amicus briefs with the Clerk of the Court, and Respondents have consented in writing to the filing of this brief in accordance with Supreme Court Rule 37.3. Pursuant to Rule 37.6, amicus curiae states that no counsel for a party authored any part of this brief in whole or in part, and no counsel or party made a monetary contribution intended to fund the preparation or submission of this brief.

I. SUMMARY OF THE ARGUMENT

The purpose of this brief is to bring to the Court's attention U.S. treaty provisions and customary international law principles that bear on the legality of Executive Order 13780 of March 6, 2017 ("EO"), which replaces the now-rescinded Executive Order No. 13769 of January 27, 2017.

The United States government is bound by the international treaties it ratifies as well as by customary international law under the Supremacy Clause of the Constitution and U.S. Supreme Court jurisprudence. These treaties and customary international law must be faithfully executed by the President and enforced by U.S. courts except when clearly inconsistent with the U.S. Constitution or subsequent acts of Congress.

The United States is a party to and bound by several international human rights treaties relevant to the subject matter of the EO. Those treaties, most notably the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights ("CCPR") and the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination ("CERD"), prohibit distinctions based on either religion or national origin, except when necessary and proportionate to a legitimate aim of the state. Such distinctions violate international human rights law binding on the United States whenever they have either the purpose or effect of disadvantaging a group on the prohibited grounds.

The EO makes a prohibited distinction in immigration policy based on national origin on its face. The government has offered no coherent rationale for the distinction between the countries subject to the immigration suspension and other countries. As such, the EO violates the human right to freedom from discrimination based on national origin under the CCPR, CERD, and customary international law.

In addition, the EO has both the purpose and effect of establishing a discriminatory immigration policy based on religion, as statements made by the President before, during, and after the adoption of the EO make plain. A state measure motivated by religious animus violates U.S. obligations under the CCPR and customary international law, regardless of any discriminatory effect vel non. Moreover, a measure that has the effect of discriminating based on religion violates these obligations regardless of its motivation. The EO has a discriminatory effect because, although not all persons from predominantly Muslim countries are disadvantaged by it, only persons from predominantly Muslim countries are disadvantaged.

This Court should continue to construe the relevant provisions of the U.S. Constitution and applicable statutes in a manner that does not put the United States in violation of obligations under international human rights law and, as such, consider U.S. obligations under international law, which forms part of U.S. law, in evaluating the legality of the EO.

II. ARGUMENT

A. International Law Is Relevant to Assessing the Legality of the Executive Order

International law is relevant to this case because the U.S. Constitution makes treaties part of U.S. law. Customary international law is also part of U.S. law and is enforceable by U.S. courts. Under the Supremacy Clause of the Constitution, “treaties made . . . under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land, and judges of every state shall be bound thereby.”² Although the Constitution does not require legislation prior to treaties taking legal effect, the Supreme Court distinguishes between self-executing and non-self-executing treaties.³ The Senate or the President has declared that the relevant human rights treaties to which the United States is a party are non-self-executing.⁴ Nevertheless, by ratifying those treaties, the United States bound itself to provide judicial or other remedies for violations of treaty obligations.⁵ Thus, even if the treaty provisions

² U.S. Const. art. VI, cl. 2.

³ See Restatement (Third) of Foreign Relations Law § 111(3)-(4) (1987).

⁴ See, e.g., 138 Cong. Rec. S4781-01 (daily ed., Apr. 2, 1992) (International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights); Sen. Exec. Rpt. 101-30, Resolution of Advice and Consent to Ratification (1990), at II(2) (Convention Against Torture).

⁵ See, e.g., International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights art. 2(2), Dec. 19, 1966, 999 U.N.T.S. 171 (1976) [hereinafter “CCPR”].

themselves are not directly enforceable in U.S. courts, the rights they grant should be protected by courts through their interpretation of constitutional provisions and statutes addressing the same or similar subject matter.

This is consistent with the positions taken by both the Executive Branch and Congress in those cases in which Congress has not passed implementing legislation.⁶ When submitting human rights treaties to the Senate for its advice and consent, both Presidents George H.W. Bush and William Clinton assured the Senate that the United States could and would fulfill its treaty commitments by applying existing federal constitutional and statutory law.⁷ Courts generally

⁶ See, e.g., U.N. Doc. CAT/C/28/Add.5, paras. 58-60 (“Where domestic law already makes adequate provision for the requirements of the treaty and is sufficient to enable the United States to meet its international obligations, the United States does not generally believe it necessary to adopt implementing legislation.”).

⁷ During Senate hearings on the Convention Against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (“CAT”), June 26, 1987, 1465 U.N.T.S. 113, the State Department Legal Advisor told the Senate: “Any public official in the United States, at any level of government, who inflicts torture . . . would be subject to an effective system of control and punishment in the U.S. legal system.” Hearing Before the Comm. on Foreign Relations, U.S. Senate, 101st Cong. (1990), at 8.

Similarly, with respect to the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (“CERD”), Dec. 21, 1965, G.A. Res. 2106 (XX), Annex, 660 U.N.T.S. 195, the Clinton Administration told the Senate: “As was the case with the prior treaties, existing U.S. law provides extensive protections and remedies sufficient to satisfy the requirements of the present construe federal constitutional and statutory law to be consistent with human rights treaties in part because the Senate has relied on such assurances as a basis for its consent to ratification.⁸ The United States acknowledged this principle in its comments to the U.N. Committee Against Torture: “Even where a treaty is ‘non-self-executing,’ courts may nonetheless take notice of the obligations of the United States thereunder in an appropriate case and may refer to the principles and objectives thereof, as well as to the stated policy reasons for ratification.”⁹ “Taking notice” of treaty obligations comports with a core principle of statutory construction announced by the Supreme Court in Murray v. The Charming Betsy: “[A]n act of Congress ought never to be construed to violate the law of nations if any other possible construction remains.”¹⁰ That doctrine has been consistently and recently reaffirmed by the Supreme Court.¹¹

Convention.” Senate Comm. on Foreign Relations, Report on International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, S. Exec. Rep. No. 103-29, at 25-26 (1994).

⁸ See, e.g., Immigration & Naturalization Serv. v. Stevic, 467 U.S. 407, 426 (1984).

⁹ State Reports—Convention Against Torture—U.S.A., U.N. Doc. CAT/C/28/Add.5, para. 57 (Feb. 9, 2000) (citing Sale v. Haitian Ctrs. Council, 509 U.S. 155 (1994)).

¹⁰ 6 U.S. (2 Cranch) 64, 118 (1804); accord Talbot v. Seeman, 5 U.S. (1 Cranch) 1, 43 (1801).

¹¹ See, e.g., F. Hoffmann-La Roche Ltd. v. Empagran S.A., 542 U.S. 155, 164 (2004).

Moreover, in Filartiga v. Pena-Irala, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit observed that a treaty that is not self-executing may provide evidence of customary international law.¹² Customary international law must be enforced in U.S. courts even in the absence of implementing legislation, regardless of whether customary rules appear in a treaty.¹³ In The Paquete Habana, the Supreme Court held that customary international law “is part of our law” and directly enforceable in courts when no conflicting treaty, legislative act, or judicial decision controls.¹⁴ As discussed below, several human rights treaty rules applicable in this case are also customary international law.

The President is also obligated to respect international law pursuant to his constitutional duty to faithfully execute the law.¹⁵ Because Article VI of the Constitution makes treaties the supreme law of the land, the President is constitutionally required to comply with U.S. treaty obligations as well as with customary international law. This was the intent of the ¹² 630 F.2d 876, 882 n.9 (2d Cir. 1980).

¹³ Restatement (Third) of the Foreign Relations Law of the United States § 111(3).

¹⁴ 175 U.S. 677, 700 (1900); see also Filartiga, 603 F.2d at 886 (“Appellees . . . advance the proposition that the law of nations forms a part of the laws of the United States only to the extent that Congress has acted to define it. This extravagant claim is amply refuted by the numerous decisions applying rules of international law uncodified by any act of Congress.”).

¹⁵ U.S. Const. art. II, sec. 3.

Framers.¹⁶ Courts therefore have a duty to restrain federal executive action that conflicts with a duly ratified treaty. As the Supreme Court wrote in ordering the President to restore a French merchant ship to its owner pursuant to a treaty obligation: “The constitution of the United States declares a treaty to be the supreme law of the land. Of consequence its obligation on the courts of the United States must be admitted.”¹⁷

Even if the President were not directly bound by international law, however, he is still obligated to comply with the Constitution itself and all applicable legislation enacted by Congress within its authority, which (as noted) must be interpreted in a manner consistent with international law whenever possible.

The following sections identify the treaties and customary international law relevant to the legality of the EO.

¹⁶ Alexander Hamilton, Pacificus No. 1 (June 29, 1793), reprinted in 15 The Papers of Alexander Hamilton 33, 33-43 (Harold C. Syrett ed. 1969).

¹⁷ United States v. The Schooner Peggy, 5 U.S. (1 Cranch) 103, 109 (1801).

B. International Law Regarding Discrimination on the Basis of Religion and National Origin

1. The International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights

Discrimination based on religion or national origin is prohibited by the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (“CCPR”). The United States ratified the CCPR in 1992.¹⁸

Article 2 of the CCPR states in relevant part:

1. Each State Party to the present Covenant undertakes to respect and to ensure to all individuals within its territory and subject to its jurisdiction the rights recognized in the present Covenant, without distinction of any kind, such as race, . . . religion, . . . national or social origin, . . . or other status.

3. Each State Party to the present Covenant undertakes:

(a) To ensure that any person whose rights or freedoms as herein recognized are violated shall have an effective remedy, notwithstanding that the violation has been committed by persons acting in an official capacity;

(b) To ensure that any person claiming such a remedy shall have his right thereto determined by competent judicial, administrative or legislative authorities, or by any other competent authority provided for by the legal system of the State, and to develop the possibilities of judicial remedy;

¹⁸ 138 Cong. Rec. S4781-01 (daily ed., Apr. 2, 1992).

(c) To ensure that the competent authorities shall enforce such remedies when granted.

The United Nations Human Rights Committee (“HRC”) is charged by the CCPR to monitor implementation by state parties and to issue guidance on its proper interpretation. The HRC interprets article 2 to prohibit “any distinction, exclusion, restriction or preference” based on a prohibited ground, and which has “the purpose or effect of nullifying or impairing the recognition, enjoyment or exercise by all persons, on an equal footing, of human rights and fundamental freedoms” protected by the treaty.¹⁹ To justify a derogation from the nondiscrimination (or any other human rights) duty, a measure must pursue a legitimate aim and be proportionate to that aim.²⁰ A “proportionate” measure is one effective at achieving the aim and narrowly tailored (or “necessary”) to it.²¹

¹⁹ Human Rights Committee, General Comment No. 18, para. 6, U.N. Doc. HRI/GEN/1Rev.1 at 26 (1994).

²⁰ Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, General Recommendation No. 30, para. 4, 64th Sess., U.N. Doc. CERD/C/64/Misc.11/rev.3 (2004).

²¹ See Aaron Xavier Fellmeth, Paradigms of International Human Rights Law 119-21 (2016).

The substantive rights guaranteed by the CCPR, which must be protected without discrimination based on religion or national origin under article 2, include the protection of the family. Article 23 provides in relevant part: “The family is the natural and fundamental group of society and is entitled to protection by society and the State.”²² The HRC has interpreted this right to include living together, which in turn obligates the state to adopt appropriate measures “to ensure the unity or reunification of families, particularly when their members are separated for political, economic or similar reasons.”²³

Restrictions on travel and entry caused by the EO that impose disparate and unreasonable burdens on the exercise of this right violate CCPR article 2. The HRC has explained that, although the CCPR does not generally recognize the right of aliens to enter or reside in the territory of a State party . . . , in certain circumstances an alien may enjoy the protection of the Covenant even in relation to entry or residence, for example, when considerations of non-discrimination, prohibition of inhuman treatment and respect for family life arise.²⁴

²² CCPR, supra note 6, art. 22(1).

²³ Human Rights Committee, General Comment No. 19, para. 5 (1990), U.N. Doc. HRI/GEN/1/Rev.1 at 28 (1994).

²⁴ Human Rights Committee, General Comment No. 15, para. 5 (1986), U.N. Doc. HRI/GEN/1/Rev.1 at 19 (1994).

Thus, the right of entry is not beyond the scope of the CCPR. On the contrary, the CCPR's nondiscrimination principles and protections for family life should be considered by courts in interpreting government measures affecting family unification. This treaty-based protection for family life is consistent with Supreme Court jurisprudence respecting the role of due process of law in governmental decisions affecting family unity.²⁵

More generally, article 26 of the CCPR prohibits discrimination in any government measure, regardless of whether the measure violates a Covenant right:

All persons are equal before the law and are entitled without any discrimination to the equal protection of the law. In this respect, the law shall prohibit any discrimination and guarantee to all persons equal and effective protection against discrimination on any ground such as race, colour, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status.

As interpreted by the HRC and consistent with its wording, this provision “prohibits discrimination in law or fact in any field regulated” by the government.²⁶ Notably, unlike CCPR article 2, the equal protection provisions of CCPR article 26 lack article 2's limitation to “all individuals within [the state party’s] territory and subject to its jurisdiction.”

²⁵ See Landon v. Plasencia, 459 U.S. 21, 34, 37 (1982); Kerry v. Din, ___ U.S. ___, 135 S. Ct. 2128, 2140–41 (2015) (Kennedy, J., concurring).

²⁶ Human Rights Committee, General Comment No. 18, supra note 19, para. 12 (emphasis added).

The nondiscrimination provisions of the CCPR are also customary international law binding on the United States, forming part of U.S. law unless contrary to the Constitution or a statute. The Universal Declaration of Human Rights, which the United States approved in 1948, mandates nondiscrimination in religion and national origin, equal protection of the law, and protection from arbitrary interference in family life.²⁷ The American Declaration of the Rights and Duties of Man, which the United States approved when it signed and ratified the Charter of the Organization of American States the same year, has similar provisions in articles 6 and 17.²⁸ These nondiscrimination principles and the right to family unity have become sufficiently widespread and accepted by the international community that they have entered into customary international law in the present day.²⁹

²⁷ Universal Declaration of Human Rights, arts. 2, 7, 12, G.A. Res. 217A(III), U.N. Doc. A/810 at 71 (1948).

²⁸ O.A.S. Res. XXX (1948), Basic Documents Pertaining to Human Rights in the Inter-American System, OEA/Ser.L/V/I.4 rev. 13, at 13 (2010).

²⁹ See Hurst Hannum, The Status of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights in National and International Law, 25 Ga. J. Int'l & Comp. L. 287, 329 (1995/96).

2. The International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination

The International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (“CERD”) also bars discrimination based on national origin. The United States has been a party to the CERD since 1994.³⁰ Under article 2, paragraph (1)(a), each state party commits to refraining from and prohibiting all forms of racial discrimination, and each further undertakes “to engage in no act or practice of racial discrimination . . . and to ensure that all public authorities and public institutions, national or local, shall act in conformity with this obligation.” CERD defines “racial discrimination” to include distinctions and restrictions based on national origin.³¹ With regard to immigration practices, CERD makes clear that states are free to adopt only such “nationality, citizenship or naturalization” policies that “do not discriminate against any particular nationality.”³² Like the nondiscrimination provisions of CCPR article 26, CERD article 2 does not limit its application to citizens or resident noncitizens. While CERD does not speak specifically to restrictions on entry of nonresident aliens, the general language of CERD expresses a clear intention to eliminate discrimination based on race or national origin from all areas of government activity: “States Parties undertake to prohibit and to eliminate racial discrimination in all its forms . . . without distinction as to race, colour, or national or ethnic origin”³³

³⁰ See 140 Cong. Rec. S7634-02 (daily ed., June 24, 1994).

³¹ Id. art. 1(1).

³² Id. art. 1(3).

Article 4 of CERD further provides that state parties “[s]hall not permit public authorities or public institutions, national or local, to promote or incite racial discrimination,” which (as noted) includes discrimination based on national origin. The Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, the body of independent experts appointed to monitor CERD’s implementation, interprets article 4 to require states to combat speech stigmatizing or stereotyping non-citizens generally, immigrants, refugees, and asylum seekers,³⁴ with statements by high-ranking officials causing “particular concern.”³⁵ In TBB-Turkish Union in Berlin/ Brandenburg v. Germany, for example, the Committee specifically determined that Germany violated the Convention when it failed to discipline or punish a minor government official who had inter alia drawn attention to low employment rates of Turkish and Arab populations in Germany, suggested their unwillingness to integrate into German society, and proposed that their immigration should be ³³ Id. art. 5.

³⁴ Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, General Recommendation No. 35: Combating Racist Hate Speech, para. 6, U.N. Doc. CERD/C/OC/35 (2013).

³⁵ Id. para. 22.

discouraged.³⁶ These statements, the Committee determined, implied “generalized negative characteristics of the Turkish population” and incited racial discrimination.³⁷

The legality of the EO in this case, and the proper interpretation of the statutes and constitutional provisions cited by the parties, should be assessed with those proscriptions in mind. Those international law principles require courts to reject any attempt by the President to define classes based on national origin or religion, and then to impose on those classes disparate treatment, except to the extent necessary to achieve a legitimate government purpose.

C. Relevant Provisions of the Executive Order

Section 2 of the EO categorically suspends immigration from six specified countries—Iran, Libya, Somalia, Sudan, Syria, and Yemen, and imposes special requirements on immigrants from Iraq. Section 2(a), moreover, authorizes the Secretary of Homeland Security to demand “certain information” from “particular countries even if it is not needed from every country.”

The EO thus makes an explicit distinction based on national origin that, unless necessary and narrowly tailored to achieve a legitimate government aim, would violate U.S. obligations under international law. In effect, the EO also makes a distinction based on religion, as Respondents have argued. Notably, every one of the designated countries has a population that is overwhelmingly Muslim,³⁸ and the EO does not suspend immigration from any state with a non-Muslim majority.

³⁶ Comm. on the Elimination of Racial Discrim., Commun. No. 48/2010 (Feb. 26, 2013), U.N. Doc. CERD/C/82/D/48/2010.

³⁷ Id. para. 12.6.

International law is also relevant to Section 11 of the EO, which requires the Secretary of Homeland Security to “collect and make publicly available” certain information relating inter alia to convictions of terrorism-related offenses, government charges of terrorism, and “gender-based violence against women” by foreign nationals. The EO requires no publication of similar information relating to U.S. nationals. By mandating that the Secretary publish pejorative information about noncitizens without publishing comparable information about U.S. citizens, Section 11 makes a suspect distinction based on national origin. While Section 11 has not been challenged specifically by the Respondents, it may bear on the intent to discriminate, because the decision to publish derogatory information about noncitizens alone is stigmatizing, and appears to be motivated by a desire misleadingly to characterize noncitizens as more prone to terrorism or gender-based violence than U.S. citizens. Apart from what it may indicate with respect to intent, a measure designed to stigmatize noncitizens cannot be proportionate and thus violates article 26 of the CCPR and articles 2 and 4 of the CERD.

³⁸ See Central Intelligence Agency, World Factbook, <https://www.cia.gov/library/publications/the-world-factbook/geos/xx.html>.

III. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, amici request that the Court consider U.S. obligations under international law, which forms part of U.S. law, in evaluating the legality of the EO.

Respectfully submitted.

Aaron X. Fellmeth
Counsel of Record
Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law
Mail Code 9520
Arizona State University
111 E. Taylor St.
Phoenix, AZ 85004-4467
480.727.8575
Aaron.Fellmeth@asu.edu

Elisabeth C. Frost
Amanda R. Callais
PERKINS COIE LLP
700 13th Street, NW
Suite 600
Washington, D.C. 20005-3960

Counsel for Amici Curiae
International Law Scholars and Non-Governmental Organizations

APPENDIX

APPENDIX

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Appendix App. 1

APPENDIX A

The amici are nongovernmental organizations and legal scholars specializing in public international law and international human rights law. They have substantial expertise in issues directly affecting the outcome of this case. These amici are identified below.

Organizations

Amnesty International Limited

Center for Justice & Accountability (San Francisco)

Global Justice Center

Human Rights Advocates

Human Rights & Gender Justice Clinic, City
University of New York School of Law

International Association of Democratic Lawyers

International Center for Advocates Against Discrimination

International Justice Project

International Justice Resource Center

Legal Aid Society (New York)

MADRE

National Law Center on Homelessness & Poverty

National Lawyers Guild

Secular Communities of Arizona

T'ruah: The Rabbinic Call for Human Rights

App. 2

Individuals

Institutional affiliations are listed for identification purposes only; opinions in this brief do not reflect those of any affiliated organization.

1. William Aceves, Dean Steven R. Smith Professor of Law, California Western School of Law
2. Dr. Johannes van Aggelen, former senior human rights official, United Nations, Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights
3. Wanda M. Akin, Esq., Co-Founder, International Justice Project
4. Shifa Alkhatib, Esq., Phoenix, AZ
5. Don Anton, Professor of International Law & Director, Law Future Centre, Griffith University Law School, Australia
6. Angela Banks, Charles J. Merriam Distinguished Professor of Law, Arizona State University, Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law
7. Paige Berges, Esq., London, United Kingdom
8. Wendi Warren H. Binford, Associate Professor of Law; Director, Clinical Law Program, Willamette University
9. Carolyn Patty Blum, Interim Director, Benjamin B. Ferencz Human Rights and Atrocity Prevention Clinic, Benjamin N. Cardozo Law School

App. 3

10. Anthony P.X. Bothwell, Esq., Law Offices of Anthony P.X. Bothwell
11. Bill Bowring, Professor & Director of the LLM/MA in Human Rights, University of London, Birkbeck College School of Law, U.K.
12. Raymond M. Brown, Co-Founder, International Justice Project
13. Gráinne de Búrca, Florence Ellinwood Allen Professor of Law, New York University Law School
14. Elizabeth Burleson, Esq., Greenwich, CT
15. Roderick P. Bushnell, Esq., Law Offices of Roderick P. Bushnell, San Francisco, CA
16. Linda Carter, Professor of Law Emerita, University of the Pacific, McGeorge School of Law
17. Dr. Grace Cheng, Associate Professor of Political Science, Hawai'i Pacific University
18. Marjorie Cohn, Professor Emerita, Thomas Jefferson School of Law
19. Jorge Contesse, Assistant Professor, Rutgers (Newark) Law School
20. Michael D. Cooper, Esq., Chair, United Nations Committee of the New York City Bar Association
21. Kevin Cope, Research Assistant Professor of Law, University of Virginia

App. 4

22. Omar Dajani, Professor, University of the Pacific, McGeorge School of Law
23. Thomas A. Dallal, Esq., Deputy Director, Diakonia International Humanitarian Law Resource Center, Jerusalem
24. Margaret M. deGuzman, Associate Professor, Temple University, Beasley School of Law
25. Daniel H. Derby, Professor, Touro Law Center
26. Margaret Drew, Associate Professor & Director, Human Rights at Home Clinic, University of Massachusetts Law School
27. Ariel Dulitzky, Clinical Professor of Law, University of Texas School of Law
28. Monica Feltz, Esq., Executive Director, International Justice Project
29. Martin S. Flaherty, Leitner Family Professor of International Human Rights Law, Co-Director, Leitner Center for International Law & Justice, Fordham Law School
30. Daniel Fullerton, Counsel, Public International Law & Policy Group
31. Hannah Garry, Clinical Professor of Law & Director, International Human Rights Clinic, University of Southern California, Gould School of Law
32. Seyedeh Shannon Ghadiri-Asli, Legal Office, International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia

App. 5

33. Peter Halewood, Professor of Law, Albany Law School
34. Alexandra Harrington, Adjunct Professor, Albany Law School
35. Christina Hioureas, Counsel and Chair of the United Nations Practice Group, Foley Hoag, LLP
36. Deena Hurwitz, Esq., Director, Atrocity Prevention Legal Training Project, Cardozo Law Institute in Holocaust & Human Rights, Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law
37. Dr. Alice de Jonge, Senior Lecturer, Monash University, Australia
38. Christine Keller, Esq., Legal Officer, International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia
39. Jocelyn Getgen Kestenbaum, Telford Taylor Visiting Clinical Professor of Law, Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law
40. Nigel N.T. Li, President, International Law Association, Chinese (Taiwan) Branch; Chinese (Taiwan) Society of International Law
41. Robert Lutz, Paul E. Treusch Professor of Law, Southwestern Law School
42. Daniel Barstow Magraw, Senior Fellow, Foreign Policy Institute and Professorial Lecturer, Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies

App. 6

43. Anna R. Maitland, Schuette Clinical Fellow, Center for International Human Rights, Northwestern University, Pritzker School of Law
44. Kathleen Maloney, Adjunct Professor, Lewis & Clark School of Law
45. Annette M. Martínez-Orabona, Adjunct Professor, Inter-American University of Puerto Rico, School of Law
46. Thomas M. McDonnell, Professor of Law, Pace University, Elisabeth Haub School of Law
47. Jeanne Mirer, Esq., President, International Association of Democratic Lawyers
48. Catherine Moore, LLB, LLM, Coordinator for International Law Programs, University of Baltimore School of Law
49. Steven S. Nam, Distinguished Practitioner, Center for East Asian Studies, Stanford University
50. Dr. Andrew Novak, Term Assistant Professor of Criminology, Law & Society, George Mason University
51. Natasha Lycia Ora Bannan, President, National Lawyers Guild
52. Aparna Polavarapu, Assistant Professor, University of South Carolina School of Law
53. Dianne Post, Esq., Central Arizona National Lawyers Guild

App. 7

54. William Quigley, Professor of Law, Loyola University New Orleans, Loyola College of Law
55. Balakrishnan Rajagopal, Professor of Law & Development, Massachusetts Institute of Technology
56. Jaya Ramji-Nogales, I. Herman Stern Professor of Law, Temple University, Beasley School of Law
57. Nicole Rangel, Esq., Associate Legal Officer, International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia
58. Marny Requa, Associate Professor, Georgian Court University (Lakewood, NJ)
59. Nani Jansen Reventlow, Associate Tenant, Doughty Street Chambers, U.K.
60. Francisco J. Rivera Juaristi, Director, International Human Rights Clinic, Santa Clara University School of Law
61. Gabor Rona, Visiting Professor of Law, Cardozo Law School
62. Joshua Root, Esq., Instructor of Human Rights and International Law, Newport, RI
63. Leila Sadat, Henry H. Oberschelp Professor of Law; Director, Whitney R. Harris World Law Institute, Washington University School of Law
64. Margaret L. Satterthwaite, Professor of Clinical Law, New York University School of Law

App. 8

65. Beth Van Schaack, Leah Kaplan Visiting Professor in Human Rights, Stanford Law School
66. Mortimer Sellers, Regents Professor and Director, Center for International and Comparative Law, University of Baltimore School of Law
67. Carey Shenkman, Esq., Principal Investigator, Institute for Social Policy and Understanding
68. Dr. Anette Sikka, Assistant Professor of Legal Studies, University of Illinois, Springfield
69. Matiangai Sirleaf, Assistant Professor, University of Pittsburgh Law School
70. David L. Sloss, Professor of Law, Santa Clara University Law School
71. Rachel A. Smith, International Law Association, American Branch, Program Director
72. Juliet S. Sorensen, Harry R. Horrow Professor of International Law, Northwestern University, Pritzker School of Law
73. Dr. Michael Stein, Executive Director & Visiting Professor, Harvard Law School Project on Disability
74. Milena Sterio, Professor of Law & Associate Dean, Cleveland State University, Cleveland-Marshall College of Law
75. Jessica Stern, Executive Director, OutRight Action International

App. 9

76. Anastasia Sarantos Taskin, Esq., Taskin Law & Mediation
77. Juliet S. Sorensen, Harry R. Horrow Professor of International Law, Northwestern University, Pritzker School of Law
78. Beth Stephens, Distinguished Professor, Rutgers (Camden) Law School
79. Jeremy Telman, Director of International Programs and Professor of Law, Valparaiso University Law School
80. Dr. Tara Van Ho, Assistant Professor, Aarhus University Department of Law
81. Constance de la Vega, Professor of Law, University of San Francisco
82. Meghan Waters, Esq., Denver, CO
83. Dr. Ralph Wilde, Reader, University College of London Faculty of Laws, U.K.
84. Matthew Zagor, Associate Professor, Australia National University College of Law
85. Katja Ziegler, Sir Robert Jennings Professor International Law, Director, Centre of European Law and Internationalisation, University of Leicester School of Law, U.K.